Susan McLeod will trace the history of departments of writing as they separated from English departments to form their own units. She will also discuss the development of the writing major & outline the work that she sees necessary to ensure that the majors developed in these new departments are consistent & coherent.